My name is Ashlyn Heusch and I am in my third year at Oregon State University and in the OSU Honors College. I am a double major in Construction Engineering Management and Sustainability.

I currently work as an intern for Fortis Construction. I am the current president of the AGC Student Chapter at OSU, a club that helps students get connected with construction companies for internship and job opportunities. I perform research on environmental sustainability in construction.

After I graduate, I am excited to work for a general contractor where I can incorporate my knowledge of sustainability into construction and make it a more sustainable field.
